

SACReD
Spiritual Alliance of Communities
for Reproductive Dignity

May 18, 2023

Senator President Pro Tempore Phil Berger
House Speaker Tim Moore
North Carolina General Assembly

Dear Mr. Berger and Mr. Moore,

As people from across North Carolina representing multiple religious traditions, we write to urge the North Carolina General Assembly to allow Governor Cooper's veto of Senate Bill 20, Care for Women, Children, and Families Act to stand.

The hasty passage of this bill through both chambers of the General Assembly illustrates a lack of careful consideration necessary for such momentous decisions. We are especially concerned about the way this legislation seeks to stigmatize people who have abortions, people who provide abortions, and others involved in healthcare delivery to pregnant people. The healthcare community is already on record expressing their concern for the safety and well-being of the people who will be impacted if this bill becomes law.¹

As religious people, we believe the decision to continue or end any pregnancy is a deeply moral decision. While we clearly support and celebrate pregnancy, children, families, and healthy communities, our religious traditions support the position that pregnant women and people are morally capable of making the decision about whether to continue any particular pregnancy. In fact, the pregnant person is the only person who can know if they are morally, emotionally, psychologically, physically, and financially prepared and capable of continuing a pregnancy.

Religious beliefs about pregnancy, gestation, and ensoulment differ across and within our faith traditions. Thus, the question of when life begins is a question of faith, not a scientific question. We urge you not to codify into North Carolina's legal doctrine a particular religious belief that is not shared by all the people of our state. Religious beliefs should be taught in religious communities and practiced by individual believers. They should not be embedded into our legal codes.

<https://www.northcarolinahealthnews.org/2023/05/04/medical-providers-protest-abortion-restrictions-new-bill/>

We believe the individual who is pregnant in conversation with medical professionals, trusted friends, family members, and religious communities have the resources they need to make the best decisions for themselves. North Carolina's history of eugenics and the sterilization of people deemed "unfit" to reproduce is only one example of the negative impact of state control over who will reproduce and under what circumstances. This rush to pass dangerous and stigmatizing legislation that does not represent the wishes of North Carolina residents, 62% of whom support legal access to abortion in most or all cases, is a demonstration of the abuse of political power.²

We urge North Carolina's legislators to let Governor Cooper's veto stand and then to return to your chambers to write legislation that will support pregnant people and their families by passing living wage laws, affordable housing measures, state-wide parental leave mandates, and increased support for childcare. North Carolinians also need access to medically accurate sex education for our youth and young adults, and all North Carolinians need free and complete access to all forms of contraception and birth control measures (including but not limited to Long-Acting Reversible Contraception), and new public health initiatives that address the crisis of maternal mortality in our state. These measures will do more to reduce the number of abortions in our state than a strict mandate.

We invite you to work with us and not against us in the moral work of supporting women, pregnant people and their partners, and all the families in North Carolina.

Cordially,
